THE POWER OF NON-VERBAL COMMUNICATION

THE UNSPOKEN LANGUAGE OF THE EYES

The human eye is often called the window to the soul. It can betray or conceal emotions, sometimes even more effectively than spoken words. The "mischievous gleam" in someone's eyes suggests a playful, secretive, or slightly rebellious attitude. It hints at a person who is possibly up to something or enjoying a private joke. Similarly, "sneaky looks" imply an attempt to hide intentions or avoid detection.

Key aspects of eye-based cues include:

- PUPIL DILATION: Often associated with excitement, interest, or arousal.
- GAZE DURATION: Prolonged eye contact can indicate confidence or confrontation, while fleeting glances might suggest nervousness or deception.
- BLINK RATE: Increased blinking can be a sign of stress or lying; decreased blinking might suggest focus or withholding information.
- EYE MOVEMENTS: Moving eyes side to side (called "visual scanning") can reveal attempts to recall or fabricate information.

FACIAL EXPRESSIONS AND BODY LANGUAGE

Beyond the eyes, the face and body posture contribute significantly to understanding behavior.

- MISCHIEVOUS EXPRESSIONS: Smirks, raised eyebrows, or twinkling eyes often accompany playful scheming.
