Base Rate

- Charged per day, often starting around $50-$150 depending on the company and truck size.
- Some companies have minimum rental periods, but one-day rentals are generally straightforward.

Mileage Charges

- Many rental companies include a set number of miles (e.g., 100 miles) in the base rate.
- Additional miles are billed at a per-mile rate, often ranging from $0.20 to $0.50 per mile.
- Reagan expects to drive about 20 miles round-trip, likely covered within the included miles.

Taxes and Fees

- Vary by location, often totaling 10-20% of the rental cost.
- May include local taxes, airport fees if applicable, and licensing fees.

Insurance and Protection Plans

- Optional coverage such as Collision Damage Waiver (CDW), Liability Insurance, or Personal Accident Insurance.

- Costs range from $10 to $30 per day, but some credit cards or personal auto policies may cover rentals, reducing costs.

Additional Accessories

- Towing hitches, furniture pads, or GPS might incur extra charges.
- Reagan needs only the truck, so she plans to avoid these extras unless necessary.

Sample Rate Comparison Table

Rental Company	Base Rate (1 Day)	Included Miles	Cost per Additional Mile	Estimated Taxes & Fees	Total Estimated Cost
